The event will consist of local employers being invited to the Edward Dunn and providing potential opportunities to members of the local community.

Everyone deserves the right conditions to do their best work

The South Yorkshire Housing Association believe that workplaces should support local communities to thrive. Being in work can create more connections, provide a sense of purpose, bring financial stability and security, and help us to recognise and build on all our strengths. This event aims to promote workplace opportunities.

Good Work is based on Individual Placement Support, a 'place then train' approach. This means working with people to get a job then moving quickly to find identify the correct. The South Yorkshire Housing Association works with employers to recruit and retain these brilliant candidates and offer specialist training and advice on workplace health and wellbeing.
